Description

Credit Island Slough is a side channel to the Mississippi River along the Iowa shoreline and is separated from the main channel by Credit Island. The entire island is privately owned by the City of Davenport and is developed with sport fields, golf course, boat ramp, etc. Officials from the City of Davenport have been complaining about significant sedimentation which impacts the environmental vitality within the slough and the ambience with the park. No project authority has been identified, nor has any project formulation been done to date. The Iowa DNR submitted a project fact sheet (proposal) for consideration through the Environmental Management Program. The Fish and Wildlife Interagency Committee (FWIC) considered all proposals in Jan 2006. However, the Credit Island proposal received a low ranking and was not among the priority projects recommended for implementation as funding become available in the future. The City also documented the sedimentation problem in their Jan 2005 publication of the Davenport - Rock Island "Rivervision" Plan. They are hopeful that a project could be implemented under the NESP - ecosystem restoration component of a WRDA authority for construction. No planning or design for a Credit Island project is underway at this time using NESP appropriations.
